Habiter les grands ensembles

The project Habiter les grands ensembles is a key tool of analysis and taking action for the reevaluation of the image of working-class neighborhoods, the circulation of innovative processes for territorial policies and inspiring initiatives in favor of neighborhoods and their inhabitants. It is part of a program of reflection led by La Ville en Commun for the renewal of territorial policies and is associated with the PACT program for the promotion of innovative architectural and urban processes.

La Ville en Commun

Reinventing transformative territorial policies

The City in Common is a laboratory of ideas and research-actions that unites professionals, citizens, elected officials, researchers and practitioners of the territory. It is a space for sharing and reflection on local public policies, a place for the production of ideas, generator of alternative, solidarity or civic experiences. The City in Common is placed in the field of social transformation and political alternatives. Its field of action and investigation is oriented towards contemporary urban developments, more generally on the organization and development of territories.

PACT

Platform for Alternatives in City and Territory

PACT is gathering committed urban practitioners, researchers, and policy makers in urban field which collect, disseminate, and highlight the multiplicity of experimental projects that are rich in alternative political and disposal tools. Thus put together and analyzed, they are brought to the public discourse to encourage better policies and conditions for urban processes in Europe. PACT organizes and curates events at Venice Biennale. PACT sets up workshops with European Universities and partners.

Partenaires et Mécènes

The projet Habiter les grands ensembles received support from l'Agence nationale de la cohésion des territoires (ANCT), l'Agence nationale pour la rénovation urbaine (ANRU), Conseil national des villes, as well as La Caisse des dépôts, Icade, Groupe Pichet, Europequipements, La Fondation d'entreprise La Poste.

With the support of La Biennale architettura di Venezia.
